Distance: 5³/₄ miles/9.1km Time: 3-3½hours Grade: Moderate

CHOSEN BY... FIONA BARLTROP Selborne is synonymous with the great 18th-century naturalist. Gilbert White. His book, The Natural History of Selborne, has never been out of print since it was first published in 1789 and has inspired naturalists from Charles Darwin to David Attenborough and Chris Packham. White was born in the village 300 years ago, and worked as a curate in nearby Farringdon as well as Selborne itself. He lived at the house known as The Wakes and was a keen gardener. Both house and garden - which has been recreated using White's diaries and correspondence - are open to the public. The house is also home to the Oates Collections where visitors can learn about the explorer and naturalist. Frank Oates, and his nephew. Captain Lawrence Oates, who accompanied Captain Scott on his journey to the South Pole in 1912. (An Oates descendant provided funds to purchase the property, which operates as an independent charitable trust.) This figure-of-eight walk explores the surrounding landscape which Gilbert White knew and loved, taking in Selborne Hill and the valley of the Oakhanger Stream. with an optional loop round Noar Hill Nature Reserve.
