London is one of the world's great walking cities and this route linking Royal Parks, contrasting boroughs and rich communal heath is a cheering reminder of the grandeur and variety of our capital. From the shadow of Big Ben to the (comparatively) dizzying heights of Parliament Hill, the walk follows the course of the vanished Tyburn River and forms a satisfying expedition with abundant options en route for refreshment, relaxation and retail.

1 Start

Turn R out of Westminster tube station beneath Big Ben.

Pass the statue of David Lloyd George and cross the road (Birdcage Walk) to St James's Park. Buckingham Palace looms ahead like a great limestone cliff. Around the head of the lake, walk past Canada Gate and along the drive of memorials. Beyond Wellington Arch and the Royal Artillery Memorial, enter your next park at Hyde Park Corner. Follow the finger post in the direction of Marble Arch and Speakers' Corner, but then angle L past the benches and cavalry monument toward the south bank of the Serpentine.

on Marylebone Lane, the course of the Tyburn River.

3 4 miles/6.4km

Cross the A5204, jinking L to pick up Marylebone Lane again, following it into Blandford Street and then turning R into Baker Street. Cross busy Marylebone Road, the sight of trees beckoning you on your next park.

4 4¾ miles/7.6km

Enter Regent's Park, crossing the boating lake on nearby bridge then following the Open Air Theatre sign. Beyond the theatre follow in the direction of London Zoo. Leaving via the 1933 Chester Road gate, keep straight passing the allotment gardens on L. Turn L at The Broadwalk heading for the bright white of the Ready Money Drinking Fountain. Stay straight.

5 6 miles/9.6km

Leave Regent's Park on same course and cross bridge to join canal towpath heading past the Feng Shang Princess floating restaurant. Follow into heart of Camden crossing iron bridge to The Ice Wharf pub. At road turn L, recrossing the canal and passing under the famous Camden Lock bridge. At Ferdinand street turn R to follow Malden Road passing the Fiddler's Elbow on L.

Road turn briefly R then L on Roderick Road. Painted on the wall above: 'Leading to Parliament Hill fields over footbridge'. Over the bridge, climb the hill steeply as the famous London vista gathers behind you. Carry straight on over the hill to pick up the path leading between the ponds (men's swimming pond on R). Follow L round the far side of Model Boating Pond and then head back uphill towards the tree-encircled tumulus. Beyond the tumulus head downhill picking up path between lines of lofty trees.

7 9 miles/14.5km

At cross path turn R uphill, marked bridleway/boat, to the Vale of Health. Turn R at road, almost immediately taking narrow path L cutting by wall. Cross next road and turn R parallel with it. Follow to Golders Green tube. CW
